

G500 • G600

Employees were able to see the first new Gulfstream G500 as they exited Building Z after the launch ceremony on Oct. 14.

On Oct. 14, Larry Flynn, president, announced the introduction of two new aircraft that have been in development since 2009 – the all new, clean-sheet designed G500 and G600 – to Gulfstream Advanced Aircraft Program (AAP) employees, plus General Dynamics board members, local dignitaries, customers, financial analysts and media.

The G500 and G600 aircraft represent the combined efforts of more than 2,200 employees who have been directly involved in AAP, and thousands more if including the partner suppliers and those who helped build and equip Savannah's Buildings Y and Z, our new manufacturing center where the G500 and G600 will be made.
